Andrew Gbur | Keltie Ferris | Jackie Saccoccio

Eleven Rivington is pleased to present an exhibition of recent large-scale paintings by Andrew Gbur, Keltie Ferris, and Jackie Saccoccio, on view from September 7 - October 16, 2011. Works in the show - scaled to maximum - are concerned with varying degrees of control in the painterly process: Gbur's bleeding industrial printer inks defy the traditional constraint of painter's tape, resulting in contours which refer to the support; Saccoccio governs her ostensibly liberated painterly gesture through manipulation of gravity; Ferris employs an unfettered industrial spray tool to create ambiguous spatial realms. The installation is a conversation between large paintings about formal and chromatic dissonance and frisson.
